

The High School of Foreign Languages

The High School of Foreign Languages consists of two departments. They are the Department of Preparatory Classes and the Department of Foreign Languages. The Department of Preparatory Classes was created to teach Turkish and Kyrgyz to students who enter Kyrgyz-Turkish Manas University. In the preparatory classes, students of all faculties and higher professional schools study Turkish and Kyrgyz as compulsory languages, since education is carried out in Turkish and Kyrgyz in our university. According to the students' major, English, Russian or Chinese are also taught in preparatory classes. In faculties and in higher professional schools, students have foreign language classes. The Department of Foreign Languages conducts the teaching of English, Kyrgyz, Russian and German as foreign languages in faculties and higher professional schools. All activities of the High School of Foreign Languages are aimed at effective language teaching and providing an excellent education.
